What can we do?

Cities and Counties have been canceling their contracts this to citizens like you showing up to City Council meetings, writing letters, making phone calls, and protesting.

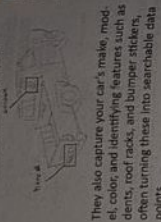

Democracy doesn't defend itself!

What are ALPRs?

Automated License Plate Readers that use AI power to turn images into text. These cameras capture and analyze images of every vehicle that passes, storing details like your car's location, date, and time.

Driver and passengers too!

They also capture your car's make, model, color, and identifying features such as dents, roof racks, and bumper stickers, often turning these into searchable data points.

Cops aren't just hunting criminals

ALPRs are ripe for abuse by crooked cops and nearly impossible to escape once they designate you as a target.

JEFFERSON, GA.

Marci Bakely's ex-boyfriend always seemed to know where she was. Flock had given Police Chief, Michael Steffman, the power to silently monitor her life.

The tool "Have I Been Flocked" showed he had searched for her more than 600 times.

Flock Causes Safety Concerns

In one California town, Flock misread license plates in 71% of the alerts it sent to police.

Joel Feder from The Drive news outlet was surrounded by armed police officers in a parking lot in Minnesota. He spent hours explaining why he drives luxury vehicles for a living and is not a car thief. He had to prove his innocence to avoid arrest. Flock system captured unclear footage which missed two numbers of Joel's license plate, causing it to match the full plate of the stolen vehicle they were investigating.

Fortunately his influence kept him out of handcuffs!

Flock Data Falsely Accuses Florida Woman of Murder

Lindsey Isaacs was falsely accused of a hit and run based on Flock data.

Police accused her of a hit and run that killed three people. Florida patrol impounded her car without even looking for damage. Lindsey was facing 8 felony counts, life in prison, spent 13 days in jail, and had to come up with a $250,000 bail.

When investigated it was clear this was the wrong vehicle.

Flock misread the plate!

You might think "I'm not a criminal, so I have nothing to worry about." Think again!
